Customer support should be available through several methods like live chat, phone, or email. The online casinos we recommend provide fast, effective, and approachable customer support service.

The logistics and processing make it virtually impossible to do so. For example, let's say you won $1000 on a video slot. How could that be added to your phone bill without causing the mobile network provider difficulties? Essentially, they would owe you $1000, and this would have to be resolved either by credits or by wiping your phone bills for the foreseeable future. Simply put, mobile network providers would never do this.

This is even more beneficial for frequent switchers, that is users who regularly switch casinos to take advantage of the introductory offers. If you're frequency signing up to new account's you need to be careful as you will undoubtedly be repeatedly entering your home/banking information, which could leave you vulnerable to having that info stolen.
